

Campus Hönggerberg

Once the University ran out of space around the main building in the city centre, it expanded to a second location on the Hönggerberg in the 1960s. The new site was directly adjacent to forests and farmland. Today, the vibrant university campus is Switzerland's largest and equipped with state-of-the-art infrastructure. In short: high tech meets cow pastures. Take a campus tour to experience the vibrant centre of modern research and breathe the air of academia. More than 10,000 people work and study here. Immerse yourself in a pocket-sized town! The campus was inspired by the American model, where studies and social life blend together seamlessly. In addition to research buildings and lecture halls, there are flats, sports facilities, shops and restaurants here.
